An Important Invention. The very rapidly increasing demand for imroved bicycles and tricycles has led many of he most noted inventors into this channel of experimental work. Amos 153 West Main street, just received patents on a new machine which promises to meet a rapid sale and general popularity. His tricycle, as it may properly be called, is operated and propelled by the hands, although the same prinriple may be applied to treadle motion as well as it is rotary in its action. In Mr. Honk's machine the power is applied directly to the driving wheels. The entire appliance is simple and very desirable. It cannot be gotten out of order. It is claimed that this new tricycle can, in point of speed, distance any three-wheeled machine now made under the same conditions, as it has three times the driving power of any of them. On an or-dinary roadway the Hoak machine can dinary easily be propelled with one hand and the comfortable and large seat provided makes riding upon it a fuscinating pleasure. The seat used would be impractical on a treading machine oving to its size, and this feature will make the Hoak tricycle very popular with lady tiders. Mr. Hoak is now making arrangeme, is for the manufac-ture of his tricycles and will probably form a stock company to undertake the enterprise which certainly promises to develope into a very profitable one Those who may be intered are invited by Mr. Hosk to call at his sections, 153 W. Main street, and see his invention. There is evidently an opportunity to get hold of a good thing it the proper persons interest

The Harvest Home Festival.

Among the Hebrews began Thursday the Harvest Home Festival, termed Sukkos, which means "booths." The festival is so called because when the Jews were residents of Palestine they dwelt in huts or booths during the whole feast, which continues for eight days, the first and last of which are regarded as important bolidays, while the in-tervening period is no nearly so sacredly observed. In the flowery days of Israel, Sukkos was one of the three occasions in the year when all the members of the nation were expected to visit the holy city, and for miles around the booths erected for the feast were densely peopled. In these days the Jewish places of worship are elaborately decorated and the holiday appropiriately ob-
